Fall 2021

Dear Fellow Knitters and Crocheters,

What a year (17 months) it's been! Finally, we are seeing signs of some normalcy. It appears we can go about our business without too many restrictions. And we've decided it's time to re-introduce our classes.

Enclosed in this newsletter is the list of classes being offered this fall. If you had previously been enrolled in a class, you will be hearing from us about whether you would like to resume your class this fall. Feel free to call us if you have any questions.

Fall yarns are beginning to arrive. I'm realizing I ordered a lot of new sock yarns for fall ...Coopknits Socks Yeah! (both fingering and DK weight), The Fibre Company's new Amble and Plymouth's new Shades of Sockotta. And we have classes to back them up!

Trends for the fall point to vests being big. Mary is addressing this with her vest class. Having already knit three samples for the shop, she's ready to spur you on to knit one for your fall wardrobe!

In my last newsletter (Spring/Summer 2020), I was excited to tell you about two new lecture/discussion classes being taught by Josie Branco. Since they never happened, here they are again: "I've Finished Knitting, Now How Do I Block My Sweater?" and "How Yarn Is Made and How That Affects My Knitted Project". Josie is a real fiber enthusiast and knitting expert. Becoming more knowledgeable can help all of us to become better consumers and makers. (I'm signing up for both classes.)

Another class we didn't want you to miss out on is Penny's Knitted Doll class. Her pattern is from Louise Crowther's book, My Knitted Doll. It's simply adorable and is certain to be a favorite for the little girl in your life.

Berroco and Lang shipments are due mid-August and there's a lot of fun new fibers we're excited about. Rowan is due to arrive in September and October. We'll be posting about this on Instagram and Facebook as they arrive.

In the new staff department, we never really got to welcome Paige, who joined us shortly before the lockdown. More recently, we have welcomed Allison and Michelle to the staff. We are happy they are here!

As many of you know, we've had a limited open schedule during the pandemic, but with the start of the Yarn Crawl on July 31st, we are going back to our "old" schedule. We haven't been requiring appointments for a while now.

Hope to see you soon!

Happy knitting and crocheting!
Lynette
